9:00 am – 10:00 am	Opening Keynote: Bruce Walsh, University of Regina Press "Only after understanding who we truly are, can we reach our potential as a nation," s Bruce Walsh. That's the epitome of this week-long conference "Libraries: Convergence under living skies!" What does it mean to be a gallery, a library, an archive or a museum in the world today? What does it mean to be the keeper and curator of all creation when computer programs are designed to assimilate our thinking and societal changes are rocking the very foundation of protecting the rights to partake in the sharing of knowledge without repercussion. Bruce Walsh, founding Director of the University of Regina Press and prize-winning publisher will share his experiences as an advocate for intellectual freedom, activist for Reconciliation, and entrepreneur to explore ways in which we can move the status quo without losing sight of our fundamental role in society.	Capital A Ballroom
10:00 am – 10:30 am	Coffee/Nutrition Break	Moose Jaw and Swift Current Rooms and Mezzanine Lobby
10:30 am -12:15 pm	Title: Artificial Intelligence – Seize the Opportunity Description: Artificial intelligence is positioned to be the mother of all disruptive technologies. What does this mean for libraries, and, most importantly, how do libraries seize AI to construct capacities and capabilities? Develop plans to integrate AI into daily functions? Use AI to mine our data and collections to create new knowledge and connections never before possible? What's our role in facilitating community, corporate and campus decisions regarding the ethical and social implications of AI? How do we realistically plan for workplace implications? Work with the speakers and with your colleagues from across Canada to address these and other questions and help refine the agenda for actions the associations and every library must take. Presenters: Brent Barron, Director, Public Policy CIFAR; Scott Hargrove, CEO Fraser-Valley Regional Library System;	Capital A Ballroom

1:45 pm - 3:30 pm	Title: Intellectual Freedom – Sustaining a Core Value Description: Intellectual freedom has long been recognized as one of librarianship's core values. It is the underpinning of access to information, relates to the concept of academic freedom that is regularly being challenged within universities, and is semantic to journalism's freedom of the press. Is the role played by libraries on intellectual freedom changing? Ideally, what should this role be? Can - and should - libraries be neutral? Work with the speakers and with your colleagues from across Canada to address these and other questions and help refine the agenda for actions the associations and every library must take. Presenters: Dr. Mary Cavanagh, Associate Professor, School of Information Studies, University of O Dr. James Turk, Director, Centre for Free Expression & Distinguished Visiting Professor University; Pilar Martinez, Chief Executive Officer, Edmonton Public Library; Dr. Marie D. 	A1 Title: SAS Project - Bringing Storytelling to Saskatchewan Description: Saskatchewan Aboriginal Storytelling has been happening for the past 13 years, the successes and challenges need to be shared with the people who organize and/or participate. We will share the project and talk about our 2018 program. Presenter: Harriet Roy	Capital A Ballroom
	A2 Title: Instructional Value as Evidenced by Reference Statistics Description: A research team reviewed reference statistics taken over a two year period; analyzed the causes of the increase and made decisions for future instructional offerings, based on the quantitative evidence. Presenter: Tasha Maddison Co-presenter: Meghan McDonald Sponsor: Saskatchewan Polytechnic	Qu'appelle Room
	A3 Title: It takes a province to save a library system Description: Hear a library researcher tell her story of the recent library 'crisis' and its legacy. Several dimensions of this bigger story include Saskatchewan's public library history, organization, and legislation; the role of media and in particular social media; expertise, documentation, and social networks; the power and voice of rural Saskatchewan; and citizen leadership. Give feedback on her story and provide your own 'take-away' lessons, one year later. Presenter: Mary Cavanagh Sponsor: Rasmussen, Rasmussen, and Chernowsky	Prince Albert Room
	A4 Two Spotlight Sessions A4-1 Title: Canadian Public Library Programming for Adults with Developmental Disabilities Description: This presentation explores the findings of an independent research study conducted between May and August 2017 during the presenter's MLIX education at the University of Western Ontario. The Researcher intended to discover how many programs were available for adults with developmental disabilities in Canadian public libraries, the types of programs in existence, and what made these programs successful. The study consisted of three steps, including examining over 1400 public library websites from across Canada to discover programs advertised for adults with developmental disabilities. 	Presenter: Katie Dermody A4-2 Title: Creativity and Collaborative Training in Round Prairie's Innovation Lab Description: This session provides a brief overview of setup and training for Saskatoon Public Library's new makerspace at Round Prairie Branch, including strategies and practices for implementation and training, tools for technology access taff and patron communication, and other insights into building collaborative learning work culture. We will touch on successes and challenges and what the makerspace looks like today. Presenter: Amanda LePage Copresenter: Cyndi Cunanan
	A5 Two Spotlight On Sessions A5-1 Title: What I Did Last Winter Description: Thanks to a Continuing Ed grant from SLA, Janell Ranae Rempel was able to take Intercultural Facilitator (ICF) training through the Multicultural Council of Saskatchewan (MCoS), last February, and as of THIS February, has very much enjoyed her first experience offering ICF in Regina. If you've read her bio, you'll know "there's a story there"... Janell will share some of this story -- which is still unfolding -- as well as why she thinks it so important to take time to facilitate intercultural communication and relationship(s), and how libraries are positioned and poised to help with this vital work. Presenter: Janell Ranae Rempel A5-2 Title: A First-Timer's Fearless Guide to OLA Super Conference Description: OLA Super Conference's 'Fearless by Design' 2018 program compelled attendees to take action and effect change within our organizations and communities. The program focused on professional leadership and civic engagement as paths to social justice, educational equity, and sustainable services. This session will review the highlights of a first-timer's experience attending Super Conference, and explore the central themes that made the 2018 conference utterly fearless! Presenter: Gina Brander	SBCC 2
12:00 pm – 1:00 pm	Lunch with Delegates and Exhibitors	Moose Jaw and Swift Current Rooms and Mezzanine Lobby
1:00 am – 1:50 pm	CONCURRENT B
	B1 Title: Blanket Exercise (Continues in C1) Description: The blanket exercise is an experiential teaching tool (workshop) that helps participants gain an understanding of the impact of colonization on the people who lived here long before settlers arrived. The workshop traces the 500 year history of the relationship between European and Indigenous peoples in Canada. Participants respond to cues and read from prepared scrolls. The workshop ends with only a few participants remaining on the blankets. Participants leave the workshop with the shared history and knowledge that we are all on the path to healing and reconciliation.	Capital A Ballroom

	Presenter: Amber Daigneault Co-presenters: Members from LSSAP
	B2 T Title: Copyright and Libraries in 2018 Description: This session will provide information on the Canadian copyright landscape, including an overview of new and ongoing copyright developments relevant to the library community. The goal of the session is to increase awareness of, and facilitate a conversation about, copyright issues impacting libraries. The session will also focus on specific copyright exceptions that can be used in libraries, archives and museums. There will be time for a "Questions and Discussion" period at the end. Presenter: Kate Langrell Co-presenter: Christina Winter	Qu'appelle Room
	B3 Title: Really, how safe is your library? Description: To smell the roses, you first have to plant them. However to accomplish this public libraries first must be a welcoming and safe place. They need to be safe for customers and staff but in 2018, exactly how do we do that? Join Kitty Pope and lean some practical ways to make your library safer and free of workplace violence and harassment. This workshop will be of interest to library administrators, HR staff, Directors and CEO's. Presenter: Kitty Pope Sponsor: Saskatchewan Library Trustees Association	Prince Albert Room
	B4 Title: Removing barriers to accessibility in public libraries: what libraries across Canada are doing well Description: In working with public libraries across Canada, we've noticed that libraries that "do accessibility well" have some things in common. We'll share our observations and their practical, low-cost suggestions on how to make library culture more welcoming and practical to staff and patrons with disabilities. Presenter: Sabina Iseli-Otto	Capital B Ballroom
	B5 Title: Having a hoot with Kahoot! Description: Keeping students engaged while teaching library instruction can be a challenge. Studies have shown that the use of interactive technologies in a classroom setting not only enhances student learning but improves student engagement. With this in mind the presenters adopted the use of the Kahoot! Application in their library instruction at the University of Regina. Kahoot! Is a free web online platform that provides a game-show like interface. This user experience (UX) demonstration of Kahott! Is for people interested in using interactive technologies in a wide variety of environments. Bring your mobile devices to participate in this session! Presenter: Mary Chipanshi Co-presenter: Corina van den Berg	SBCC 2

	E1 Title: RPL Inspires! Outcomes Based Library Planning Description: In 2017 the Regina Public Library launched a new strategic plan. Taking action to turn the plan into a high impact customer focused service model began by: 1. Identifying an outcomes based framework that would guide the process. 2. Engaging Library staff and the Regina community to collect information that would inform decision making. 3. Assessing and using the results of the engagement initiative to ensure outcomes are achieved over the next three years. Participants will get an insider's look at the tools, the process, the progress date and next steps. Presenter: Nancy MacKenzie Co-presenter: Colleen Hawkesford Sponsor: Regina Public Library	Moose Jaw Room
	E2 – Two Spotlight On Sessions E2-1 Title: Province Wide Interlibrary Loans - 3 Years Later Description: It's now been 3 years since we went to a province-wide interlibrary loan system and due to new factors in the ILL world, usage has doubled. Using information from the OCLC ILL conference in conjunction with the past 3 years of data from the province-wide ILL system: usage, cost to borrow, what is being borrowed, what we are loaning, and the need to examine its impact on local acquisitions. Presenter: Jan Smith	Qu'appelle Room

What are some of the advantages and disadvantages of joint-venture school-housed public libraries? What's new up in Uranium City lately? These questions and more will be answered in this engaging, enlightening presentation on the uniqueness of the Pahkisimon Nuye?áh Library System and its member communities all across Northern Saskatchewan. Presenter: James Hope Howard Sponsor: Saskatchewan Library Trustees Association
	E3 Title: Building a Literary Community with Self-Publishing Services Description: The public library is a natural place to foster a literary community. With many authors exploring self-publishing, it is logical to turn to the library as a source of information and inspiration. By providing a self-publishing service – whether through the production of books with an Espresso Book Machine, by assisting authors in producing e-books, or by facilitating a writers' group – your library can develop a strong relationship with local authors and their readers. Services can be tailored to fit your community needs and resources and your library will enjoy an enthusiastic and loyal group of new users. Presenter: Sue Perry	Prince Albert Room
	E4 Title: Ban it From All Our Libraries! Results of the 2016 and 2017 Annual Surveys of Challenges to Materials and Policies in Canadian Libraries Description: What titles and policies are being challenged in Canadian publicly-funded libraries of all types? What are the reasons given for the challenges? Who is behind the challenges? How do the challenges from 2016 and 2017 compare? Come and see what people want banned from all of our libraries! Presenter: Donna Bowman	Capital B Ballroom
	E5 Title: Inventing the Wheel Together: Idea Sharing and Organization in Children's Programming Description: Does it feel like you are 'reinventing the wheel' every time you develop a program for children? Through an entertaining and engaging presentation, Lindsay and Amanda will show you how to make the most of your planning time by collaborating with others and recording your ideas for future programs so you always have ideas at your fingertips. We will share our best resources for story-time ideas, including books, music, websites, blogs, and more. Join us for a session full of ideas creativity, connection and sharing! Presenter: Amanda Lepage	Swift Current Room
